

MIGHT HAVE HAD WOMEN IN COUNCIL

City Council Adopts a Radical Amendment to the City Charter But Takes it all Back on Consideration

The important and much-agitated question of the "fixing" of the city engineer did not come up last night although there was quite an audience present to see what was to happen at the council meeting. After the routine business was finished the question was side-tracked by the consideration of the amendments to the city charter, which kept the aldermen busy until the time limit.

The audience which fore-gathered to see what would happen to the commissioner evidently found no attractiveness in an aldermanic discussion of the city charter, and withdrew when the council commenced to consider what amendments it would submit to the legislature, but in so doing they missed a little human interest story which was worth waiting for.

Edmonton only escaped woman suffrage and the possibility of a petition government last night by Ald. Mays' decision to reconsider what he had done after he voted in favor of what Ald. Boyle called "socialistic legislation."

It was in the consideration of a clause defining who should vote that the play came up. One amendment to the charter changes qualifications for mayor from $1500 leasehold to $5000 realty only, so that a tenant-mayor could not be, and attached to this the clause which says that he shall be elected by male property-holders, unmarried females over twenty-one years and widows owning property.

Ald. Bellamy said he thought all women property-owners should have a right to vote, so that a woman who married should not disfranchise herself by entering into the matrimonial state. Ald. Mays thought the same thing and moved a construction of the clause which extended the franchise to all women property-holders, which Ald. Latta and Ald. Smith supported, and only Ald.

Another change provides that a householder may, when not an owner, pay $5 as a householder in lieu of poll tax.

MAYOR ASKED TO EXPLAIN

City Council Wants to Know Why Edmonton Was Not Invited to Join Municipal Union

Commissioner J. S. Kinnaird, at the council meeting last night, brought it to the attention of the aldermen that Edmonton has been wilfully slighted or purposely overlooked by the mayor of Calgary and the committee calling the convention of Alberta municipalities in Calgary yesterday and today, as no invitation had been received although Edmonton had testified its willingness to attend the convention.

Acting Mayor Bellamy suggested that Mayor Emerson should be asked why the city of Edmonton was not notified of the meeting and Aldermen Boyle and Mays put it in the form of a motion instructing the commissioner to ask Mayor Emerson for an explanation, and also to ask him to read the telegram before the meeting.

CZAR PARDONS MUTINEER

Odesa, Mar. 6.—It is announced from St. Petersburg that Emperor Nicholas has pardoned ex Lieut. Schmidt who commanded the Russian cruiser Olegoff during the mutiny at Sebastopol and who was recently sentenced to death by court martial.

HASTY GETS LIFE SENTENCE

Murdered Two Men Who Resented Insult to a Woman

Raleigh, N. C. Mar. 6.—The jury in the Hasty case at Gaffney, S. C., returned a verdict of "guilty" today. The prisoner was commended to the mercy of the court. Hasty was tried for the murder of Milton Bennett, and Abbott Davidson, members of the "Nothing But Money" company. Hasty was sentenced to penitentiary for life but it was announced that his counsel would appeal to the supreme court. Bennett and Davidson were killed by Hasty because they resented his insult offered to a woman member of the theatrical company.

TROUBLE FOR WHITNEY

Chatham, Mar. 6.—A fierce local fight has again broken out here over the refusal of the new board of license commissioners to renew the license of the Rankin House and as a result Thomas Martin of the board, has resigned. Chairman Smith is saying that if he is removed he will spend $75,000 in defeating the Government at the next general election.

Commission Begins Work

Ottawa, March 6.—The Insurance commission will start out work by investigating the inspection which insurance department has made during the past year into the life insurance companies. This will be done at Ottawa. G. F. Shapley, K.C., Toronto, will be in Ottawa on Wednesday next.

Council Holds Special Meeting

The amount of unfinished business which has accumulated on the table of the city council has necessitated a special meeting of the Aldermanic board this evening. When the city fathers concluded at an unusually late hour last night their consideration of the charter amendments they decided to hold another meeting this evening and as many successive meetings as may be found necessary to finish up the business in hand.

Legislature Will Open in Rink

The opening of the legislature of Alberta will take place in the Edmonton skating rink. This is the decision arrived at by the provincial executive, and acting upon it the rink has been leased and arrangements made to clear it of ice in time for the opening ceremonies on the 15th of March. After the opening day the business of the legislature will be conducted in the Mackay avenue school, as heretofore announced.

Court Had No Jurisdiction

In the Peace River election case, judgment on which has been handed down by Judge Scott, the court found that it had no jurisdiction to interfere or prescribe whether or not an election had been held; that the power to do so rested entirely with the legislature, and that the appeal of Lucien Dubuc to have the election ratified should have been made to the legislature itself and not to the courts.

Alberta Municipal Union Formed

Calgary, Mar. 6.—A union of Alberta municipalities was formed at the inaugural convention held today. There was a very good representation from different parts of Alberta and it was decided unanimously to form the union. A constitution was formed along the lines adopted by British Columbia with some changes made necessary by local conditions. The Union decided unanimously to urge the public ownership of telephones. Representatives from every part of Alberta announced the unanimous and determined policy in favor of public ownership in general and of telephones in particular.

EDMONTON WON FIRST GAME

Thistles Defeated Shamrocks Last Night in Calgary Brewing Co's Cup Series

The Strathcona seniors went down to defeat last night in the Thistle rink before the Edmonton Thistles in the first game of the series for the Calgary cup by five goals to four.

The last remnant of the season's ice was fast disappearing under the influence of the warm breezes from the south and returning to a liquid state. Nevertheless a pretty fair representation of the hockey-loving populace of Edmonton and the sister city turned out for a last time to see the old rivals play the game. And they were rewarded, for the game was really exciting, and the boys batted the rubber around in the slush in a manner that kept the crowd dancing all the time.

It was a close game, one of the closest that has been played on Edmonton ice this winter. Every man on the ice was in the game for all he was worth from the draw, and there was not a slow minute. The Thistles appeared none the worse for their recent adventures abroad. Powers and Arnold Johnston were back again with their old-time vigor, although Power's ankle seemed to bother him at times, and he made several bad misses. The Strathconas had young Bud Kent on in place of the famous Ab. Kent, on right wing, and the boy showed up well. The Thistles played a strenuous game for every goal they got. Strathcona evaded up twice, and it took three minutes overtime to make good the deal for Edmonton.

The game was rather rough at times and R. A. Robertson, who was judge of play, kept a close eye on the boys. The chief offender seemed to be McArthur, who visited the fence three times during the game. Deaton and Richards got mixed up in a mysterious manner and also had a rest.

At 8:35 Referee Burley dropped the rubber and for a few minutes the

OFFERED FEDERAL GOVERNMENT TEMPORARY POST OFFICE

Syndicate Holding Options on Howard Street Lot: Would Build Temporary Post Office

At the city council last night a petition from east end citizens asking that the council recommend that the temporary post office site be placed not farther west than McDougall street brought to light the fact that a syndicate, supposed to be of local men, but names unmentioned and unknown, had taken options on a block of lots on Howard street, between Rice and Elizabeth, and that a private wire was sent to Ottawa yesterday afternoon offering the Government temporary quarters there for the post office until such time as the new post office is built, depending no doubt on the location of the post office to raise the value of their property.

Ald. Latta presented the easterners' petition, and in doing so moved that the council recommend to the Dominion a site not farther west than McDougall street be selected for a temporary post office.

Ald. Boyle stated that he did not propose to interfere with the selection of a site. "The location of a permanent site," he said, "is a serious matter, but if we, after having complained so long about the congested state of the post office, should now undertake to interfere with the selection of a temporary site, the department at Ottawa will probably commence to wonder what we want."

Ald. Mays says that on the occasion of the post office inspector's visit here he had been approached by the postmaster and informed that the inspector had looked at two sites, one at the north-west corner of McDougall and Rice streets, and the other in the Great West building, and that the postmaster wanted to know what was the council's idea of the right site. As he (Ald. Mays) had advocated in his platform

LADY WAS NERVOUS

Moscow, March 7.—A holiday planned attempt on the life of Admiral Douba-soff, governor of Moscow, and a member of the council of the empire, was frustrated yesterday. The would-be assassin was a woman, and her method was the same as that of the woman who attempted the life of Admiral Chaikmin on February 9. Representing that she came from personal friends of the governor-general, she gained admittance to the chancellery, but her agitation was noticed by an aide, who noticed particularly the luxuriance of the woman's hair, which was coiled high upon her head. When she was interrogated she attempted to flee, but was seized and searched, and a small bomb discovered concealed in her tresses.

Cushing Bros. Company, Ltd.

IS EDMONTON TO HAVE A THEATRE

It is the general consensus of opinion that if a Theatre be built, its location should be on a corner, in the heart of the City, on Street Car Line for convenience to all, near Fire Hall for protection, between the principal hotels and railway stations.

The Corner of McDougall and Sutherland streets would meet all requirements, here are two big lots 100x150 feet, on which are two dwelling houses and a printing office bringing in a fat rental to the owner, so that the man who buys now is assured of interest on his money from time of purchase.

The Alberta Agencies have this property for sale, and the prices and terms are right.

THE HUDSON'S BAY ROUTE

From a Speech by a Former Edmonton Man

The following speech was delivered by Mr. Isaac Courie, formerly of Edmonton at the Winnipeg Old Timers' banquet on March 1st:

It is a mistake that we, the sons of that mighty power which ruled the waves, and by sea power has carried her commerce and founded great nations yet-to-be all round the globe, should permit ourselves to be lulled into forgetfulness of the fact that the old timers who preceded us gained and retained this country for the glorious British flag by following the path of empire provided by providence through Hudson's straits and bay to the heart of the British possessions in North America. No nation dabbled from free access to the world's great sea-way can become permanently great, however vast its inland areas. What Russia has been and still is always ready to pour out her flood and treasure for a free seaboard has been granted as a gift by God to our favored land. What the White sea is to Northern Russia; what the Baltic is to Germany, Russia and Sweden; what the Gulf of St. Lawrence is to Eastern Canada; that Hudson's Bay can and will be to Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. Neither by "fettering fetters" nor by "crashing floes" has our way to the bay been barred; but by the powers behind the throne who do duty with a route which annihilates one thousand miles of the distance between us and our ultimate market in Europe.

I see around me old timers who, a quarter of a century ago, were as ready as Russia to fight their way to the ocean. What was everybody's business then became nobody's business; and we, engrossed in private interests, forgot the general good. So now, in this age of haste to seize every method of economizing time and of saving distance, there comes amongst us the hawk-eyed American land-man, who sees with eyes unclouded and undimmed by our weary years of waiting, waiting and hopes deferred, the prospect of doubling our products and lands by the easy construction of a short trunk railway from the Bay. And, wonderingly, he inquires why in the name of common sense this main line was not built before its branches—the systems of the Canadian Pacific and the Canadian Northern in the country naturally tributary to the Bay? Then we reply that the oriental despots of the Dominion have held the infant giants of the West in their leading strings.

That even when they concede the route, which has been tried and tasted by small sailing craft for centuries, to be practicable they say it would divert the course of trade from the older Canada which poured out its wealth to develop the west, which we at the time had repudiated. Canada has become the great and prosperous industrial nation that she is today, almost entirely through the growth of her western territories, which have done for her what the colonies have done for Great Britain, and what the Western States have done for the Eastern States of the American Union. That whatever enriches the West must also enrich Eastern Canada, is a thing under national control could possibly have such tremendous influence in that way as the utilization of the Hudson's Bay route to the markets beyond the seas. Gentlemen, it is proper that we as old timers should revive our memories of this important matter, were it merely to commemorate the achievements of the grand old timers, who preceded us in this land. We have been pleased tonight to hear the gallant Colonel Scott recount how that bold and brawny naval and military force of Canadian came with boats over the old canoe route, and annexed Assiniboia. We have also listened to the brave story of old of the discovery of America, hundreds of years before the Spaniards, by the old Norse Kings of the Main.

We were charmed at our last annual banquet by the Rev. Dr. Drummond's eloquent account of the dashing and daring deeds of the French Canadians. But we have not heard yet of the Indians and Highlanders of the North of Scotland, the Norse and the Gael who landing on the ports at this Bay, built themselves (York) boats of the model and with the gift of the galley of the Norsemen; and winding their way through the wonderful web of waterways, so well described by that able-bodied seaman, Mr. Steen, penetrated to the foothills of the Rockies, and by making portages over the water-sheds, into the great streams flowing into the Arctic Ocean. The Hudson's Bay Company's transportation system by such boats was marvellously organized, and worked perfectly till steam superceded muscle, and railways took the place of waterways. Neither the superiority of the North West Company's boats and travellers, nor the "Battle of Seven Oaks" and such skirmishes; nor Lord Selkirk's soldiers (who came in by the Dawson route a century before the Red River expedition); but the superiority of the York boat over the Canadian canoe as an economical freight with the base of supply at York Factory instead of one thousand miles further off at Montreal, decided the conflict between the North West and the Hudson's Bay Companies in the good old days of yore. It was a battle of freight rates which settled that issue, and the Hudson's Bay Route won, at 56 per 100 lbs from London to Fort Garry, as against 145 per 100 lbs from Montreal.

So absolutely necessary to his scheme of colonization in Assiniboia did that old time land and colonization agent, Lord Selkirk, consider the Hudson's Bay route that a free right-of-way to and from the Bay, and a free port thereon was stipulated for in the deed whereby he acquired from the Hudson's Bay Company with the sanction of the British Government, an area of seventy five million acres of lands, which are now included partly in the provinces of Ontario, Manitoba and Saskatchewan, and in those portions of the states of Minnesota and North Dakota which are drained by streams running into Hudson's Bay. Lord Selkirk undertook to settle this vast area, which was named "The District of Assiniboia," by emigrants from the British Isles, and to supplement the number he might send out direct. Employees of the Hudson's Bay Company were to be induced upon leaving the service to settle upon free grants in Assiniboia, one tenth of which by the original deed was granted to Lord Selkirk for that purpose only and none other whatsoever.

It appears that Lord Selkirk's heirs were compensated by the United States for his private property when included in their territory by one of our self-sacrificing treaties. It also appears that at first according to the terms of the deed Hudson's Bay men were granted land in the Red River settlement of Assiniboia; and that some 150,000 acres were so allotted. It is affirmed the Hudson's Bay Company have never exhibited to the Canadian Government any re-conveyance to the nine-tenths of this estate absolutely belonging to Lord Selkirk, while long before the transfer of Rupert's Land to Canada allotments of their irrevocable share of the one-tenth, some seven and a half million acres—said to be made to the rightful owners, the Hudson's Bay Company's retired servants, from their knowledge their rights to the land have been systematically concealed by the highest officials of the company, each of whom passed this state secret to his successor. However the matter as long so cleverly and so completely buried in oblivion has been exposed in public print quite recently, and an association has been formed by you and other old timers, who have been Hudson's Bay employees, for the purpose of establishing their rights to the land which Canada supposed she had bought with a clear title. I think that you as the old timers association should be made acquainted with this; and I am sure you will pardon the degradation from the Hudson's Bay route.

Strathcona kept it moving around the Thistle net. Banford was on the spot every time, however, and worked like a horse for a minute or two when it was particularly dangerous. Dobson, with a long reach, drew the puck away and with Powers, carried it up, Powers sending it through with a clean shot, after ten minutes play. Another ten minutes and Strathcona made a pretty score. The Thistles were exhibiting a great combination, Dobson, making some especially splendid runs. Johnston made a fast rush right from the other end of the ice, but he over-reached it just in time to miss a shot. Banford secured it when it came down, and instead of doing the life act, started down the ice with Dobson, and on a pass from Dobson scored the second for the Thistles. The half ended 2-1.

The second half was fully as interesting as the previous one, and the Strathconas were at it hard, and played a great game. With seven minutes play Powers, in a nice rush, got in another, and about a second and a half after, while the boys were taking a fresh grip on their sticks, Hampton got the rubber in behind Grady. There was some quite above them, but Burley allowed it, at the same time demanding another goal umpire, in place of the one already on the job. Johnston and Lane both got a rest at the fence at this stage, and while they were looking on, Kent evened up the score, which then stood 3-3. Arnold secured the next for the Thistles in a pretty rush. Humeaton came out to check him and missed the rubber. Strathcona again evened up in ten minutes. Grady saved a shot from Richards in a spectacular manner, and time was called.

It was decided to play off the tie, and for three minutes there was a scramble worth seeing. The rubber got down near Humeaton, however, and Powers sent it out to Johnston, who ended the game, scoring the winning goal.

The scores. First Half. Edmonton, Powers, ten minutes. Strathcona, ten minutes. Edmonton, Banford, ten minutes. Second Half. Edmonton, Powers, seven minutes. Strathcona, Hampton, half minute. Strathcona, Kent. Edmonton, Johnston, six minutes. Strathcona, ten minutes. Overtime. Edmonton, Johnston, three minutes.

THE BULLETIN AND THE UNIVERSITY QUESTION

In a lengthy communication published in the Bulletin yesterday the principal of the Edmonton high school takes exception to the attitude of the Bulletin regarding the establishment of a provincial university. The article is a well written exposition of the case from the standpoint of the university graduate and the educationalist. Summarized the correspondent contends that the Bulletin's attitude is an evidence of narrow-mindedness and lack of sympathy with the cause of higher education, and that the benefits of a university are not confined to those who graduate therefrom, and that while it might not be advisable to take any decided action for a year or so, a longer postponement would be unwise.

The charge of narrow-mindedness is probably correct, for there are limitations upon every human conception of the scheme of things which make "narrowness" a purely comparative term. But whatever narrowness may have been apparent in the views of the Bulletin is neither more noticeable nor less pardonable than the intellectual narrowness which breathes in the professed breadth of the higher educationalist's narrowness which elevates the machinery of higher education into an all-beneficent ideal and correspondingly depreciates the less transcendent means wherein the common people must rely for their mental training and equipment. The ground taken by the Bulletin was that the primary consideration was to make such means as effective and as accessible as possible and that the resources and efforts of the province should not be detracted from this purpose in an endeavor to provide prematurely for the gratification of the comparatively few who might be desirous and able to attend a provincial university.

The correspondent contends that the benefits of a university are not confined to its graduates, that through these the institution yields a social and moral influence on its entire community, and that by their labors in the field of applied science it renders valuable aid in material and industrial progress. Such is doubtless true. To advocate the converse was not the purpose of the Bulletin. If it so appeared the fault was in expression, not intent. But these indirect benefits can only be secured when a state is financially capable to maintain a university and when the people of the state are individually wealthy enough to utilize the opportunities it offers. Such conditions, we think will not exist in Alberta within the two year limit prescribed by the correspondent.

As proof that intellectual development rather than material prosperity makes a nation, Mr. Rae continues: "It may be only a commonplace, but it will stand repeating, to say that it is not 'mere material qualities'—wealth, population, large cities etc.—that make a nation great. It is the aggregate mind that elevates a people. Athens in the full blaze of her glory probably did not number 100,000 souls; yet in literature, in art, in philosophy, in science, in all that distinguishes the modern man from the gray barbarian, her influence has been greater than that of any other 'nation under the sun.'"

Material qualities may not make a nation, but no nation has been permanently prosperous or great without a foundation of material prosperity, and if the people of Athens had devoted less attention to poetry and more to agriculture, Athens might be a living power today instead of a splendid but ruined monument to the futility of trying to build a nation from the top. We scarcely think our correspondent covets for Alberta the fate of that splendid civilization which blossomed but to fade.

Scarcely more fortunate is the other illustration of Prussia: "After the humiliating defeat of Prussia at Jena by Napoleon I, her statesmen deliberated as to what was the best means of retrieving their lost fortunes, and regaining prestige, and the conclusion arrived at was that to bring about the desired result the first step should be taken to found a great university. Acting on this resolve Humboldt and Stein laid the foundations of the University of Berlin. The results were seen at Sedan in 1870."

We cherish a notion that the University of Berlin had less to do with Germany's success in the Franco-Prussian war than the invention of the needle-gun. Nor may it be out of place to point out that neither of the directors of Germany's fortunes in that war were graduates of Berlin university. Bismarck spent one year in the University of Göttingen; von Moltke had no university training.

"A later example to illustrate the same proposition would be the result 'when recently the inert ignorance of Russia went down to overwhelming defeat before the disciplined intelligence of Japan,' which 'intelligence' of over half a million men can scarcely be supposed to have been begotten in universities, and which was directed by men trained not in the universities of talent, and could only be maintained by the material wealth of Europe and Japan, but in those which are maintained by the United States."

It is quite true that the university is really "the crown, the apex, the keystone" of an educational system, and the crown should only be donned when the system reaches maturity, the apex adjusted as the final completion of the pyramid, and the keystone can only be supported and is only required when the walls of the arch have been reared.

The argument that a university is required for the training of high school teachers, ministers, doctors, lawyers and statesmen is an admission that the first business and the first result of a university would be to enable "the few" to qualify for the professions rather than the multitude for the business of life, which is the stand taken and maintained by the Bulletin.

Germany and the United States are cited as countries in which the experiments of the laboratory have powerful, aided industrial development. The reference is apt, but so also is the view that Alberta is not and will not for many years be a Germany or a United States. The industrial development of these countries began only when the agricultural development of those countries created a demand for the products of the factory, and it progressed with corresponding rapidity as the increase of population outran the capabilities of the requirements of their agricultural resources. A great industrial future doubtless awaits Alberta, but that future shall be realized only as the development of our agricultural resources creates a demand for manufactured articles and likewise a demand for employment for our increasing population. Until such time the assistance of a university to industry would be of little effect and of doubtful benefit.

It is argued that to postpone the establishment of a university would be "shutting the doors of opportunity to the youth of our land." Not necessarily. And if it were so it were better to fall in opening the door of professional aid and distinction to the few with gifts and resources to utilize those opportunities than to accomplish this at the sacrifice of our day-to-day open doors of the common school and the industrial school to every boy and girl in the province.

"Again: The only university of the future is the non-sectarian, state-supported and state-owned institution. 'This fact is too obvious to need argument. But if this province does not take the matter in hand and deal with it early, then you will have a number of denominational colleges springing up in different parts of the province. 'We have two of them already. When they get a proper foothold it will make the university question a more difficult one to solve in the end. Note the difficulty in Ontario. It has only recently been solved there, and rightly, as all the federated colleges have finally gathered around the one original state-owned, state-supported, and undenominational institution, and 'the examination requirements have been brought up to its standard.' If Ontario despite the early blunders in her educational policy has been able to untangle the university situation in such satisfactory manner why cannot Alberta with the history of Ontario's experience and errors before her so direct educational affairs that an equally satisfactory solution may be found whenever a demand for a university exists and the progress of the province warrants its establishment? That Ontario has succeeded in extricating herself from the tangle after these were securely woven is poor argument that Alberta cannot prevent the weaving or permit it only on conditions which assures an easy release when the time for action arrives."

It is argued that "if a land endowment is to be obtained from the Dominion Government for university purposes there would be danger in delay, as our Crown lands are fast diminishing." But assuming such endowment desirable, the postponement in the establishment of the institution would not involve delay in requesting the endowment.

That "there will be a greater call on our revenues proportionately for other things ten years hence than there is today" we doubt, especially as regards that portion of such revenues devoted to educational purposes. Our revenues, both from Federal subsidy and Provincial administration increase with our population, while it is reasonable to suppose that the expenses of carrying on an established system will be proportionately less than those of organizing and creating a system.

The general ground of disagreement appears to be as to what is meant by the "premature" establishment of the university. Our correspondent would appear to place a two year limit on the postponement; we would not measure the delay in years, but let it be determined by the demand for advanced education which will be our surest guide of the measure of usefulness open to the institution.

H. C. Brunton,

Owing to the present difficulty in obtaining houses in the city, and in view of what will probably be a greater difficulty in the near future, the above mentioned company has been formed for the purpose of erecting and operating an apartment house.

SITE—The site chosen is the one at the corner of Seventh street and Hardisty avenue. No selection for this purpose could be more fortunate, for the Chambers, when completed will command as fine a view, as can be obtained overlooking, as it will, the most picturesque part of the town.

BUILDINGS—Plans are being prepared for a three-storey solid brick building, having such architectural beauty as is consistent with good business economy.

It is proposed to have three flats of apartments. The first flat to consist of suits of five and four rooms. The second of those of three rooms. The third will be taken up with single rooms, but with communicating doors between each pair. The building will be fitted with every modern convenience and will be systematically heated and lighted.

In connection therewith there will be a thoroughly metropolitan restaurant in the basement of the building thus making tenants much more comfortable.

Subscription—The shares of the company are fifty dollars for each share payable as follows:

One quarter upon application.

One quarter upon allotment.

One half upon call.

INVESTMENT—Investment in the company should appeal in several ways to the citizens of Edmonton.

First—To the man or woman who has the interest of the city at heart. We are all looking for an enormous number of new citizens this year. We may however, be sure that however attractive in other respects they may find us, if we cannot house them decently, they will not regard very favourably taking up their residence in tents or other similar, unsatisfactory quarters. The Club Chambers will to a great extent relieve the present congestion and leave room for these incoming people. Then, again, we shall help in no small degree to advertise an already popular city, by reason of its being the first place in the two new provinces whose progress demands a building of this sort. There is a great deal in one's first impressions of a new town, and if we force new people to "double up" and to put up with other inconveniences, we are going to lose some of them.

Second—Investment in the Company should appeal MORE to the people residing here now who have had to put up with uncomfortable quarters, and are dutifully looking forward to a continuance of the same state of affairs. With the prospects of a comfortable, thoroughly up-to-date apartment, those who are anxious to see improvements of a city-like nature, as compared to those of a non-progressive VILLAGE, surely cannot help but see that money expended for this purpose would be money well spent.

Third—Investment in the Company should appeal MOST to the careful money investor. Based on a conservative estimate, the company will return from twelve to fifteen per cent. to investors AND ALL SPECULATIVE FEATURES ELIMINATED. It must be conceded that the business will pay, and pay handsomely. That cannot be gainsaid. The question is then, will it pay YOU? The percentage mentioned above are in excess of the average rate, even in this money-making country. It is true that more money has been, and is being made in real estate speculation. But you must remember that you are taking chances on losing every dollar. By investing your money in a company such as this, you CANNOT, on our present hypothesis, lose your money, and it will return to you above the average rate of interest.

Another thing to be considered: If we are correct in saying that lack of proper accommodation will deter newcomers from remaining, then the same men who prefer a speculative investment to that in a sound business concern, will have fewer buyers than would be the case were we to expect and accord the new citizens the comfort and conveniences, which they look for in so widely-advertised a city as Edmonton.

The stock of this Company will be placed upon the market on Monday, 5th March. Application forms may be obtained at the office of

NATURAL GAS

Winnipeg Free Press: The quest for natural gas is being vigorously continued in Edmonton and Calgary, and it is believed in both cities that an adequate and satisfactory supply will eventually be secured. A. W. Dingman, a well-known resident of the latter city, was in Winnipeg yesterday on the way to Pittsburg, to purchase drilling machines for the purpose of carrying on operations in Calgary. The work is being done by the Calgary Natural Gas Company, and will be carried on vigorously during the present year. Inquiry regarding the prospects and possibility of the natural gas supply in the vicinity of the city have been carried on through the department of the Dominion Government for a number of years, and all available data has been placed at the service of the gas company by the Government experts. At Edmonton, where drilling has been done for the past eighteen months, a second well is now being dug. It is known that owing to the nature of the land formation in the district, it will be necessary to go down two or three thousand feet through the superficial or Laramie drift, before reaching the gas-bearing horizon.

Speaking of the enormous value of natural gas, Mr. Dingman stated that the statisticians of the United States estimated that the product was worth $18,000,000 annually to the American people. Natural gas is sixth in point of value of all natural products of the ground. Those preceding it are coal, petroleum, copper, iron and gold. The supply at Medicine Hat seems to be practically inexhaustible, and it is hoped to discover similar resources from which gas may be secured at Edmonton and Calgary.

WILD HORSE VALLEY

Ston, Alta. Feb. 27.—In September of 1905 was commenced the new settlement in Wild Horse Valley, on the Pembina River. It is situated in Township 57, Range 4 and 5, and is a rich agricultural district. Many buildings have been erected, and settlers are well satisfied. Surveying is being pushed forward the valley on the G.T.P. route and surveyors are now camped here. Several survey parties are subdividing the district as far westward as the 40 mile prairie, and a wagon road is urgently needed between here and Lac St. Anne.

This survey of the G.T.P. is expected to be the final one to the McLeod River and an exceptional opportunity presents itself for enterprising men to get in on and near what will certainly be a thriving town where the G.T.P. crosses the Pembina.

The valley is reached at present by the wagon road opened out by the G.T.P. surveyors from No. 5's Crossing on the Sturgeon river via Onion prairie, and leads on to Michelson's ranch and the McLeod river.

West's store has put in a stock of goods in the valley, under the management of Herbert Williams, and already are doing business in furs, and supplying the needs of the new settlers.

During the last week eight new claims were taken up, and buildings are being erected, 10 miles west of the valley.

The open land on the Pembina river is now being taken up, another new settlement starting 30 miles up the river from Wild Horse valley, and on up to where the Jasper trail crosses the Pembina.

FORT CITIZENS REFUSE TO TALK

Ordered Out Their Phones When Tilted Price to Cover Municipal Tax

Strained relations exist between Edmonton and Fort Saskatchewan and while it may not be necessary to call out the militia to suppress the riotous, things are approaching such a stage that the citizens of Fort Saskatchewan will not talk to the citizens of Edmonton, or anyone else—over the telephone. The whole thing arose over a $50 tax which the Fort Saskatchewan Council decided to collect from the city of Edmonton as a license for the privilege of running a telephone system in the Fort. The Edmonton council conferred with its solicitor and having discovered that it had to, decided to pay the tax. In approved corporation style, however, the city of Edmonton raised the rates on Fort subscribers from $20 to $25 per year, per phone. Then the trouble commenced. Curb meetings were held in the Fort, the result of which was that the citizens decided that they were to be crooked and 50 per cent of the subscribers ordered out their phones.

The matter was brought to the attention of the city council last night by a letter from the City's agent there, Mr. Daniels who recited that half his subscribers (eight) had quit the line, and wanted to know what to do about it. Incidentally Mr. Daniels related that he had served the city faithfully and without complaint for a year at $25 a month, furnished fuel, office rent and his services as a trouble shooter at that price and that now that the telephone was no longer an experiment with the city he thought that he should get more.

During the alternate discussion of the crisis it transpired that there were 16 phones in the Fort previous to the tax and that of these only 14 were pay phones, the other two being service phones, but that the long distance line is paying big money. Last year the total revenue at the Fort was $1400, including long-distance tolls at that end, but the commissioners had not segregated the Fort tolls at this end and did not know what they were. On motion by Ald. Boyle, seconded by Ald. Mays, the city council decided to "stand pat" on the $24 rate, to be in force after April 1st, the conclusion of the first quarter, and those who care to take their phones may; but as a partial concession, phone owners in the Fort will be given a 25 per cent. reduction on long distance calls over users at the public station who are not phone owners.

As Mr. Daniels record showed that his part of the system had been neglected and that there had never been a complaint with regard to it, and as the Fort line is apparently paying pretty well the council decided to raise his pay to $40 a month.

tax and thereupon become a voter. In other words, the fundamental principle so long recognized in Edmonton that only property-owners shall vote is to be set aside if the council's recommendations be accepted by the legislature, and tenants may become voters at $5 per.

The franchise feature, which now provides that a franchise, bonus or grant may be passed by a bare majority of the ratepayers, is changed so that no exclusive franchise nor any bonus may be granted except by a two-thirds majority of the voters. As a codicil to this amendment a clause was tacked on to the effect that the two-thirds feature should not apply to the fulfillment of the negotiations now under way with the G. T. P.
